

Dear Sacha,

Thank you for taking the time to transcribe these particularly outrageous claims of Larry's. I read each several times, and where appropriate or relevant, note my response in italics. How ironic this now seems given his recent jaw-dropping denial of ever having said anything regarding his direct involvement Ground Zero access and recovery efforts, in effect, claiming never to have said any of the things that these transcriptions most assuredly quote him as having said. Oh what a tangled web we weave, right?

In 2007 Larry Warren gatecrashed a conference in Liverpool. David Shayler and Annie Mochon were giving a lecture called 'An evening with Real Spies, Unravelling The Lies'. He marched up to the front and took over. Some of his words are very difficult to make out but I have noted those moments. This is what he said;

"I wasn't there on the day. My brother almost got killed by these fuckers. He was an accountant in the South Tower".

Right. An accountant. As far as I knew for all the years I knew Larry. An accountant. Not an accountant for or with the CIA. I guess that was 'classified' when LW made these remarks.

"Right"?

"Three friends of mine died, people from this town died in that attack".

This is news to me. Especially in leu of our then (long) friendship and positive work relationship as well as a shared birthplace, I'm surprised he never mentioned anything to me about having lost THREE (3) friends in the attack. And by "this town," I wonder if he is referring to New York City, or to Liverpool where he was living when he made this remark.

He turns to David Shayler and says

"Now I respect what you do but what I did, 'cos my son's a Scouser, I'm very proud of that. However, I grew up in the Bronx in New York City. Right"?

No he's lying here. He did not grow up in the Bronx. He may have been born there. I have no way of knowing, having never seen his birth certificate. We do know however that he grew up in the Town of Cornwall on Hudson, fifty miles north of the Metropolitan Area.

"I know a lot of people that got hurt and died that day,

Wait. Please, just a few of the names of the people he knew who got hurt or wew killed on September 11?

my brother's fucked up, he's an accountant.. (garbled mutterings about his brother).. But uh, I will say this, my, when I comes, I don't know if I missed something, cos I am proud of you to get a gig like this, (to Shayler). But uh, that was an aircraft my friends, that hit those buildings, cos my brother can only remember pools of blood. It was a beautiful day in New York that day, similar to what it was here and uh, he got off his bus, 3,200 motherfuckers that were just going to work, probably didn't like their jobs, who does right"?

"Right"?

A few members of the audience replied. "Right"

"Then 911 happens, Boom and the buildings fall down. Well I worked in the steel business for a lot of years.

So, Larry studied for, then worked in the steel business. From about when to when would that have been? Given the timeline he lays for for us in his parts of "Left At East Gate," I don't see where he could have found the time to study this subject, then develop an authentic history in that industry.

Now the first thing I did, my kid being 4 months old, is I flew home as soon as the aircraft got up from Manchester, and I went down and worked in that shithole for four months. I saw parts of the aircraft come out, I saw a lot of bodies come out and I saw all this, that and the other thing".

Larry is, as we know, a liar of breathtaking skill and daring, but if he has ever told an uglier, more shocking, disrespectful series of lies, UFO-related or otherwise, I am not aware of them.

"Number 7 was undermined by number one falling down, it hit number five and threw it underneath the thing. There was a rescue mission going on for Police Officers, civilians, whoever, there weren't many under that steel right"?

"So end this thing about number 7, secret shit, it was a Federal building, Emergency Command Center was in there with Guillian and all that. He shoulda been in it when it came down personally, but he took all the hookers off the street.. [the next bit is inaudible as the audience laugh over him] .. but serious business".

He turns to David Shayler and says;

"I'm just gonna jump off, but I say if you look at this thing, I respect, you know we've got a constitution [inaudible] but Clinton started it okay? They hit that thing in '93 and I wanna tell you this, and I'm just gonna say, you can boo me or whatever and I'll frig off, there is more to me than what you think and I do know that conspiracies take place, but my son being English, there is an Islamic conspiracy that was taken advantage of by my government and yours. They flew planes in. You've gotta understand if you are not American, you don't think we can be hit until that day. If you'd have told me one minute before that plane hit, I would have laughed at you and I would have made a $100,000 dollar bet knowing that I'd never have to pay, but it happened".

"But those buildings were hollow and if any of you have ever been in them, and I've been in them many times. I remember when they got built, we used to buy TVs in that neighbourhood before they went up. Right?"

Interesting. Larry is parroting something he learned from me here. That being that prior to condemning the acreage the Trade Center would occupy, the neighborhood had been called 'Radio Row' since the Nineteen Twenties due to the large concentration of electronic, hi fi, radio and TV stores there. Every building in the area would have been destroyed by March 1966 when ground was broken for the WTC, this when Larry was five years old. "We used to buy TVs in that neighbourhood before they went up. Right?" Of course 'we' did Larry.

The West Road Highway was above the ground. But I gotta tell you something Man, think of the people, whatever it is, this is it and believe me, my government, we keep the right to bear arms and overthrow the motherfucker if this is the case".

"But it's all bad Americans these days, we got a moron in there that took advantage of what happened that day, and I just wanna say as you look at this stuff, maybe I'm wrong, I'm very emotionally connected to it cos I saw a huge amount of body parts, aircraft parts come out of this thing".

"I'm very emotionally connected to it cos I saw a huge amount of body parts, aircraft parts come out of this thing". No. That is a lie. He never "saw a huge amount of body parts," unless it was in his imagination.

Where people are just flying to LA (starts dancing side to side with his elbows out) 'hey my hamburger didn't get there', they went into a building, someone's office, all these fuckers doing aah [mimes typing] trying to connect with London (?) and do stocks and all this, right? Okay. These are real people and they all died, I just want you to think of this, when you see the buildings come down and they were hollow. It was a center core, there was a lot of plasterboard and sheetrock all through. The inner core fell faster than the outer core. (member of audience shouts what sounds like "False"! End of. Right"?)

"Detonations. You are seeing sheetrock come out (waves his arms outwards) because the inner core is falling ten floors faster than the outer core, it flew out like bananas, when across the street, the World Financial Center, took pieces outta that, it's not a big deal, West Street was not that big. Think of the people who stood there, the rescuers trying to do what they could do".

"Forget Iraq, yeah a lot of people die, and some will say what about the people in Iraq? They got shit that's coming to the surface for two thousand years.

I have no idea what he is referring to in the above sentence.

Should we have done it? No way, we got an idiot in there. I thought better of Blair, that was a shock. However we can't change that shit, it's all gonna take it's course and its great to see people speak their minds. (He turns to David Shayler and says) David I respect you a great deal but all I'll say is have a moment of silence for people in London and New York and quit being apologists for these motherfuckers that wave an islamic flag".

The audience erupts, shouting out but Warren marches straight out so he can't be questioned. Video ends.
